

Beaumanor Hall

WORLD WAR II

HISTORY TOUR

Beaumanor Hall's WWII history tour offers visitors a fascinating experience.

During World War II and the Cold War, Beaumanor Hall was occupied by the War Office and was a major establishment in the Y group – the listening stations which intercepted enemy radio signals and sent them to the famous Bletchley Park for decoding.

At Beaumanor we have an exhibition of photographs and testimonies from the 'WOYGIES' – the women who worked in the huts around the clock, listening for the Morse code messages from the Front. In the park are the original huts, one of which is visited on our tour to see where the women worked and the radios they used.

Other places of interest include the air-raid shelter, the Armoury and the attic rooms where secret agents trained.

Our guides are extremely knowledgeable and help bring the history of Beaumanor Hall to life.

The tour lasts for approximately 2 hours and includes a break for refreshments and biscuits.

For available dates, further information or to discuss your group's requirements please call or email us. We have ample free car and coach parking with easy drop off and collection.

Please note access to all floors is available via staircase.

Beaumanor Hall

Victorian

HISTORY TOUR

With its Victorian splendour Beaumanor Hall offers a great deal for the visitor.

Beaumanor Hall, a stately home with a park in the small village of Woodhouse on the edge of the Charnwood Forest, was built over the seven years 1842-1848 by architect William Railton and builder George Bridgart of Derby, for the Herrick family.

To help interested groups we conduct guided tours of the main rooms, cellars and attics of the Hall itself, as well as some of the buildings erected in the grounds.

Each tour lasts approximately 2 hours and includes a break for refreshments and biscuits

Ideal group sizes are up to 20 but larger groups can be taken with prior agreement.

For available dates, further information or to discuss your group's requirements please call or email us. We have ample free car and coach parking with easy drop off and collection.
